Good Morning Eric,

Please see attached letter heads from Motivair confirming this unit is MCDU-40 unit is totaled and the high level reasons of why.

If any further information is needed to process this claim, please let us know. Not sure if HITT or QTS have provided the formal claim demand letter at this time.

Thank You,

All,

Good morning. I have engaged the services of LSG, a 3rd party vendor to assist in moving this claim to resolution. They will be reviewing the damage report, photos, invoice, etc and reporting back to me.

Reagan,
If you get anything else back from Motivair, please forward it to me so I can pass it along.

Reagan,

Still looking for the below. Please advise.

Good morning and thanks for the information you provided on this piece. I left you a voicemail a few moments ago. I am the claims adjuster with Travelers Insurance representing Bay Crane for this loss.
You stated the piece was declared to be a total loss, and I need to follow up on this further for this claim to move ahead.

Who declared the unit to be a total? On what basis? I have a description of the damages (attached), but it is unattributed and does not indicate a "totaled" status. Ideally, I am looking for something comprehensive that lays out why this unit is non repairable.
Is there an engineering report or repair estimate with a dollar amount that has been written up? Is it a matter of damaged components and tight tolerances? I need something to present to my heavy equipment department or a 3rd party vendor to review.
In short, we have the what (damage to exterior cabinet components, broken/bent supports, bent/shifted piping, etc) but need the why.

Thanks in advance for whatever assistance on this you are able to provide.

Good Morning,

Please see attached the inspection report for the damaged unit. It was determined to be totaled. I have also attached the invoice for the MCDU-40 as proof of cost. Please note that this is the price that Texas Airsystems sold the unit to QTS direct. This does not include any third party fees or other cost accrued by QTS for this unit.

Please see the product description below:

Motivair Cooling Distribution Units

Product Description:

- Chilled Water Unit with Built in redundancy
- Condensate free operation
- Modular design for future expansion
- Active PLC Controls with BACNET IP Comm Card
- Powder coated finish with visual LED Status Indicator
- Castors for mobility and leveling
- 4” inlet and outlet connections
- Removable side panels with front and back access doors for service.

Good morning,
Please complete the highlighted portion(s) of the attached. Additionally, the insurance carrier is looking for the following information:

- A description of the unit that was damaged. What is it?
- The value/original sales invoice for that piece. How much did it cost? Provide proof.
- Repair quote if applicable.
- A formal claim demand for either repair cost or the value of the piece, as appropriate. (This is addressed with the form attached.)

Please also send supporting documentation for the costs/amounts being claimed…repair quote/invoice, appraisal valuation, etc.

If there are any additional questions, please let me know.

Thank you.

Team,

I just want to confirm that the information you need on this claim needs to reference the shipment from the factory to storage.

I have no access or information regarding the shipment of this unit from storage to the job site.

If this is in reference to the original shipment to the storage warehouse, I will get this filled out and sent back over.

Chris,

Thanks for your inquiry. To date, I don't have the information requested, nor do I have a formal claim demand.

I left a voicemail for Brad Williams at TP Mechanical and added him to this email thread as he may be best equipped to provide this information.

I have also attached a blank claim demand form, photos of the damaged piece and the incident reports for reference.

We are still looking for:

A description of the unit that was damaged.
The value/original sales invoice for that piece.
Repair quote if applicable.
A formal claim demand for either repair cost or the value of the piece, as appropriate.
